The most beautiful of all months, the The most beautiful of all months, the month of May, is here. The earth, newty arrayed, is so goodly a sight to see that living in doors is a penance to the lover of nature in her fairest plantasies. The name of the month is from a Latin and Sanskrit root which means to grow. So this is the senson of growing and blowing or blooming, when the green of grass blades, covering the ground with a velvet mantle, is matched by the green of young leaves tossing in the Spring breezes and glinting in the Spring sunshine.

of young leaves tossing in the Spring broezes and glinting in the Spring sunshine.

In ancient Rome, the feasts of "Bona dea," the guardian goddess of maidenly youth and innocence, the beloved goddess of womanhood, were held in May, and it is also a significant fact in regard to the memorial celebrations fargughout the South, which have invested its recurrence with an ever deepening tenderness and sacredness of association that May was, in the ancient Eiernal City, the time when the feasts of the dead were held.

The resurrection of nature and the resurrection or immortality of humanity are both typified in memorial feativals, for death only exists where forgetfulness croops in. The triumph of faithfulness in love and remembrance over death will be evidenced, not once, but many times, throughout this and other States in the Bouthland as the days of May are passing, while plous hands cover with the May blossoms the turf above the breasts of quiet sleepers, and plous hearts join together in the prayer:

"Lord God of Hosts be with us yet, Lest we forget!"

"Lord God of Hosts be with us yet, "Lest we forget! Lest we forget!"

his winter studio in New York for several years.

His four most noted pictures are "The Madonna and Child," owned by Mr. Fiske, of New York city; "The Child of Mary," "The Holy Family" and "The Story of the Mathonna," which will be seen in Richmond at the Spring exhibit of the Richmond Art Club.

Mr. Daingerfield's pupils who have finished their work in the schools of Paris have been favorably noticed by such masters as Whistier and Dagnan-Bouveret. The work which Mr. Daingerfield has undertaken for St. Mary's Lady Chapel is of such magnitude that a special studio has been built for the purpose.

MISS LOUISE WALTHALL.

Miss Louise Walthall, the State Sponsor for the Sons of Veterans to the Confederate Reunion in New Orleans, left yesterday for Mobile, where she will visit her grandmother Mrs. R. H. Duesberry.

She will go from Mobile to New Orleans, and after the Reunion to St. Louis, so that her trip will be an extended one. She is the daughter of Mr. Ebert C. Walthall, of this city, and the granddaughter of the late John Frederick Pollock, who volunteered for the Confederate service in one of the first companies, leaving effect being very striking and most effective.

A basket filled with flowers, beneath which two prizes were hidden, was suspended from the ceiling in the certer of the hall. Ribbons were attached to the flowers and prizes, and the dancers, holding the ends, circled in a May Pole figure, At a signal, all the ribbons were pulled, each dancer receiving a souvernir bouquet and the two prizes being wen by Miss. Mary James and Miss Alice Parrish, of Portsmouth, who is the guest of Miss Mary Drake.

About a hundred couples took part in the dance, the elegance of the toilets and the graceful movement of the couples making a lovely tableau for those looking on.
